

Sprint #2 Report

SlugMarket

Actions to stop doing:

The team should stop waiting until the last minute to complete tasks, because poor time management creates unnecessary pressure and reduces the overall quality of our work.

Actions to start doing:

The team should start writing more detailed and clearly defined tasks, because vague descriptions make it harder to estimate effort accurately and can lead to misaligned expectations during the sprint.

Actions to keep doing:

The team should keep building on the communication improvements we have made, because staying responsive and in sync with one another helps us catch issues early and deliver more consistent results.
